Teaching Philosophy

Recognizing that a meaningful education involves a combination of experiences, including research, service, leadership, and reflection—it is my responsibility to foster an environment in which students can become lifelong learners. Toward that end, and across a variety of platforms (online, in-person, and blended) I assist students in connecting knowledge and skills from a variety of experiences and perspectives. As the university experience is the launchpad of one's professional life, all online, on-campus and out-of-classroom activities are conducted in an atmosphere of friendly participation and interaction among colleagues, recognizing and appreciating the uniqueness of each student, and creating a diverse and inclusive environment for all. Students are expected to apply the highest academic standards to each course—including reading assigned materials, timely completing projects, and participating meaningfully in discussions and activities—and treating others with dignity and respect.
